

The 3rd Annual Triangle Law & Economics Conference

GAME THEORY & THE LAW

Convened jointly by DUKE LAW, FUQUA, and UNC LAW, this conference is organized around a tool—game theory—rather than topics. Gathering leading scholars from law, economics, and political science, we ask how game theoretic insights might be applied to improve our understanding of law or legal institutions.

The early panels on Friday May 1 consider issues in contract law: how courts or arbitrators should construe contracts, especially in light of unforeseen events. Focus turns to the judiciary in the afternoon panel on Friday. There, the discussion will revolve around opinion-writing and judicial law making. In a world with little information, what is the best way for a judge to craft an opinion? Saturday, May 2 the conference concludes with papers on formation of class actions, product safety, and the appropriate scope of law enforcement.

PARTICIPANTS

- Scott BAKER • UNC
- Omri BEN-SHAHAR • Chicago
- Rick BROOKS • Yale
- Charles CAMERON • Princeton
- Andrew F. DAUGHETY • Vanderbilt
- John DE FIGUEIREDO • UCLA
- David GILO • Tel Aviv University
- Mitu GULATI • Duke
- Ehud GUTTEL • Hebrew University
- Nataliya KURIBKO • Cornerstone Research
- Shmuel LESHEM • USC
- Tracy LEWIS • Duke
- Jennifer REINGANUM • Vanderbilt
- Barak RICHMAN • Duke
- Kathy SPIER • Harvard
- Matthew SPITZER • USC
- Eric TALLEY • Berkeley
- Abe WICKELGREN • Northwestern

May 1 – 2 • Fri & Sat
Duke University
Fuqua School of Business
Durham, NC

All sessions will be held in 2008 MBA Classroom (Classroom A) of the Fuqua School of Business.

CONVENED BY

- Scott Baker • UNC LAW SCHOOL
- Tracy Lewis • FUQUA SCHOOL OF BUSINESS
- Barak Richman • DUKE LAW SCHOOL

Parking available for attendees in the visitor's lot across the street from Fuqua on Science Drive.
Please contact Ann Creech creec006@duke.edu ahead of time to make arrangements.

www.law.duke.edu/conference/triangle2009/index