

Workshop on

SUBNATIONAL DEBT RESTRUCTURING AND THE RULE OF LAW

December 11, 2000 – Duke University – School of Law

Live webcast: <http://www.duke.edu/webcast/live.ram>

The workshop will examine the hypothesis that certain fundamental principles of bankruptcy reorganization law can prudently and equitably resolve the debt restructuring problems of financially troubled municipalities around the world. In that context, Professor Steven Schwarcz of the Law School will present these principles and discuss how they might be applied to Japan's municipal debt crisis as well as to the municipal debt problems of developing nations. Commentary will be provided by Professors Robert Keohane of the Political Science Department and Jacob Vigdor of the Public Policy School, as well as by Stephen M. Wallenstein, Executive Director of the Global Capital Markets Center.
